NOW ON TOUR:

If You Can Stand the Heat: The History of Women and Food

Feminists Are Funny

Silence is Violence

Guerrilla Girls On Tour

is the only touring theatre company in the United States that creates performances that take a hilarious look at the current state of women in the arts and beyond. Using skits, sketch and improvisation, Guerrilla Girls On Tour turns sexism, pay equity, body image, the beauty industry and even the dreaded “F” word (feminism) into theatre that both men and women find fearless and funny. All of our shows are interactive. We make monkey business by talking to and with audience members on their take on the issues, involving them with writing assignments, sing-alongs and audience participation.

2010 YOKO ONO COURAGE AWARD FOR THE ARTS RECIPIENTS

Hungry? So are we. With a recent grant from the Puffin Foundation we developed a new show: If You Can Stand The Heat: The History of Women and Food addresses women’s anxiety around food and the body; features a handful of lady culinary heroes who contributed to the menus of our daily lives; and investigates what responsibilities we have as surplus-food American citizens to the under-nourished nations in our global community. The brand new show is a hilarious, flour-dusted, theatrically surprising stage conversation meant to dissolve fears of food and encourage freedom of the fork. Spoiler alert: I wouldn’t be surprised if somebody got a pie in the face.

Got the giggles? Whenever we do we head back into the jungle to rework our signature show, Feminists Are Funny. We make sure to include up-to-the-minute commentary on hot political topics, breaking news in women’s issues and bunches of bananas in this riotous 70 minute romp through our famous posters, street theatre actions, and excerpts from the current comedies in our repertoire. Skits, songs and parodies in Feminists Are Funny address reproductive rights, war, sex trafficking, hunger, herstory/history/hirstory and violence against women.

Antsy? Then take a look at Silence is Violence. This play includes a 30-minute section on statistics and strategies for combating violence against women. We dramatize a series of date rape situations and educate the audience with information on how they can set boundaries and avoid potentially dangerous situations. Skits dramatizing bystander intervention end the show which is both upbeat and empowering. Local and statewide stats regarding violence against women are incorporated into each performance making each one site-specific. Silence Is Violence is also part up-to-the-minute commentary on hot political topics and part overview of Guerrilla Girls On Tour’s most famous posters, performance art and protests.
